

A letter from Adventures Into director Mike Harwin

Dear Parents

Allow me to introduce myself. My name is Mike Harwin and I am the Director of Adventures Into, an adventure learning company, specialising in delivering residential school based camps and outdoor learning activities to young people across the UK.

I am a qualified primary school teacher and have taught for over 25 years, delivering outdoor education experiences to young people. I have been Headteacher at Dell Farm and Shortenills Residential Outdoor Centres, Outdoor Adviser for a Local Authority for over 10 years and manager for the Duke of Edinburgh (DofE) scheme as well.

I now have the pleasure of organising a residential overnight experience at your children's school.

The children will take part in some amazing adventurous activities, learning some valuable life skills along the way. All delivered in a safe and engaging manner.

The evenings are filled with team games, music and story telling. For those with strong stomachs, we even have our very own bug eating, bushtucker trial.

No camp would be complete without a camp fire where children will be able to toast marshmallows and enjoy the social side of camping we all remember.

Peace of Mind.

As well as a number of school staff, brave enough to sleepover with a bunch of extremely excited children, Mike will personally be in charge of site security and overnight emergencies.

Look out for the Adventures Into campervan, Mike's overnight accommodation and mobile office, parked onsite in the School Grounds.

Mike has an up to date enhanced, DBS clearance (formerly CRB) and a full Outdoor First Aid qualification too.

What do I need to do now?

There is a full kit list attached with this letter for the overnight stay.

Apart from that you only need to encourage your child to attend the event wait for them to have a truly memorable experience of a lifetime.
